Friends of Oceano Dunes wins another court victory!

Yesterday, the San Luis Obispo County Superior Court invalidated a dust control agreement between the San Luis Obispo County Air Pollution Control District (“Air District”) and the California Department of Parks and Recreation (“State Parks”).

The agreement states it is the method for implementing Rule 1001, an Air District regulation that imposed dust control requirements on State Parks’ operation of Oceano Dune State Vehicular Recreation Area (“SVRA”). But the agreement did more than implement Rule 1001. It also tried to change it.

The Court ruled that the agreement is void and against public policy because it effectively changed Rule 1001’s “performance standard,” by making it tougher on State Parks without subjecting the change to a public hearing without public notice as required by the state’s air quality statutes. Instead, the Air District Board adopted the agreement in “closed session” out of view of the public and without public input.

The Court also ruled that the Air District staff didn’t have authority to change the mechanism for determining compliance deadlines for Rule 1001’s requirements. That, too, must be presented to the full Board of Directors of the Air District.

The ruling throws into question certain aspects of dust control at Oceano Dunes and allows State Parks to ask the Air District to reimburse it for monies expended under the void agreement.
